I'm looking to finally buy some new riding boots under $125?What brand would you recommend?and please don't say Ariat.Would you recommend tall Field boots or paddock boots?

These are the ones that I kinda like: Justin women's bay Apache Gypsy boots - square toe Ariat women's Heritage Crepe cowboy boots Ariat Women's ProBaby Saddle Vamp Cowboy Boots -

Buy or resell second-hand boots from Ariat. Our mission to keep our products in circulation longer, minimize waste, and operate sustainably.

Can you return the boots if you don't like them? I'm not a big fan of round toe for riding, but wear my Ariat boots everywhere - town, rodeo, horse show, chores, whatever. These are mine

I LOVE the look of these boots, however the price scares me a bit... I was wondering if anyone has any honest reviews on these boots, or ARIAT boots in general? All the reviews I find

So, when I decided to buy Western boots, I without hesitation bought the Ariat Western boots. They are so comfortable, they already have that broken-in feel when new. They work well for

I also have the Ariat Terrains and it took over 10 years to wear them out. The bottom sole finally came loose so I cut it off and still wear these boots all the time. I know you're looking for a

I wear Ariat paddock boots to ride in, and I have a pair of nice flashy Ariats for dress-up. My work-boots - I don't ride in them, because I've got dressage tack, and the leathers don't work well

I prefer Ariat over Justin, but they are similar. I like the roper heel-- it's more comfortable if I wear my boots all day. I prefer the crepe-type sole-- still safe in the stirrup, but much more
